Email Delivered Customer Invoices and Statements

Although any report generated within the Info.Net system can be emailed, the user will be asked to provide the email address before the delivery can be made, but in the case of documents to be sent to a customer such as automatically generated invoices, shipping notices and statements, the customer email address is already known to the system and, if so specified in the customer definition, the documentation will be automatically emailed to the customer at the time the document is generated.
