Labor Charging

Labor charges for both direct, hourly personnel and indirect salaried personnel can be tracked by the Info.Net labor transactions routines.

Direct labor charges can be entered through a variety of methods including bar code readers. The system will track direct production charges with both standard and actual values, producing charges to a labor rate variance account to account for any differences.

Indirect labor charges can be made manually through the labor transaction system, or the system will automatically charge indirect employee time to a user defined default account.
