Multi Level Sales Distributor Control

The INFO.NET system has the ability to maintain inventory control and plan inventory levels for both vendor and customer distributors. The internal user can perform these functions directly from his or her site. Customers and vendors perform these functions through the use of customer or vendor workbenches.

Each customer distributor can distribute to any number of additional customers, including additional layers of customer distributors (at which inventory levels can be maintained by the system). This ability to define and maintain multiple layers of distributors also applies to vendors.
