

Web Based Order Entry

A sales order entry routine that is prefaced by a customer definition based on the customer's email address is available. The user data will be converted into a ship-to customer record that includes the user's (encrypted) credit card and password information.

The sales order entry is based on a search of the user's catalog of products and a shopping cart concept.

The actual presentation of the sales order data entry and catalog displays is available for customization.
